INTRODUCTION

It was a pleasure when I met the PROJECT HOPE team in 1997, a group of young American missionaries (both men and women) who were going to Haiti for a week to work with children. Bill Henson, leader of the group, established contact through a Haitian friend, Edrice Milor, in order to give them a Kreyòl tutor. Bill contacted me many times. Finally, I scheduled a meeting with him in Harvard Square (June 29, 1997) where he picked me up to go and meet the group in Lexington, Massachusetts. We spent 5 hours together at Grace Chapel in a classroom, working. The students collaborated a great deal in this lesson where they came up with many phrases in English that they need to know in Kreyòl to be used with Haitians and particularly in their project's extension, "Hope for the children of Haiti". It's a group of young people in their 20's who have already shown dynamism to go and work with children in Haiti and with staff in the project. Among their work, they will be teaching English also during two weeks. I hope that their contact with Haitian youth will bring a lot of success in order for this seed to multiply in the future.

Kisa ou genyen kòm desè? What do you have for dessert?

Yon ti istwa sou senk dwèt yo ki te grangou.
A short story about the five fingers that were hungry.

Yon lè senk dwèt (fingers) yo te grangou anpil. Chak t ap panse kisa pou yo fè pou jwenn manje. Kounyeya y ap diskite, pale anpil pou chak di kijan yo pral debouye yo (What they are going to do) pou jwenn manje. Endèks di: «Mwen grangou». Lemajè (middle finger) di: «Mwen menm tou». Dwèt bag (ring finger) di: «Kisa pou n fè?». Ti dwèt (little finger) di: «Ann al vòlè ». Gwo pous (thumb) di: «Mwen pa ladan». Se depi lè sa a gwo pous retire kò l pami mesye yo; li yon ti jan ekate l (scatter).
